In preceding editions The Bohemian has sought to present a pictorial account of the everyday lives of students—how they study and play and work. This year we deviate from the usual procedure and enter a comparatively novel field: we attempt to show the winding paths along which men come to Wofford and the unswerving roads which lead away to a fuller, richer, more meaningful life. We have striven to point out the part which Wofford plays in this transition and give tangible proof of how it has affected the lives of certain alumni. If Wofford constructively alters the course of one man, its work has not been in vain. All this we present in the

The Road that Leads to Wofford....

Road that Leads from Wofford

THE ROAD TO WOFFORD—sinuous, twisting, precipitous—passes all the degradation and poverty and destitution of the South. It sees a section of illiterate masses, of eroded soils—a land of tenant farmers and squalid slums—a country of red hills in cotton, and more cotton, and more cotton.

It traverses a region of poor schools—of no schools at all—of unscrupulous politicians who do not neglect to leave unfilled the hollows of unimproved trails.

Then looms on the horizon a College of Liberal Arts. It beckons youth to enter and to partake of its Knowledge.

THE ROAD LEADING AWAY FROM WOFFORD

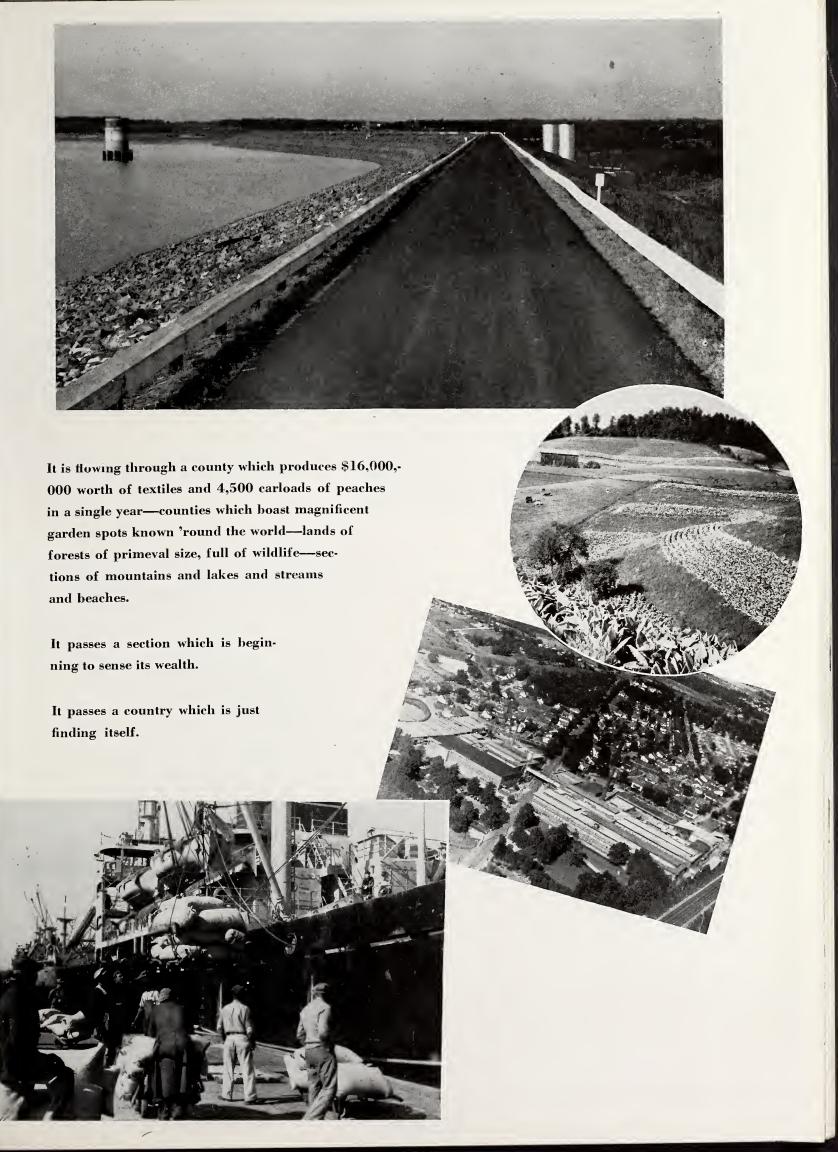

Straight and even — rises ever for more lofty heights of achievement and service.

Its travelers are clear-minded; they have an understanding and appreciation for the finer things of life—the silent beauty of nature, the music of verse, struggles of the mind; they are equipped to improve their home, for only through intelligent supervision can a land be developed to its fullest extent.

This Road stretches through a country of teeming railroad yards and humming textile plants and terraced fields; it leads to factories yet unbuilt and undreamed.

OLIN D. JOHNSTON Senator

Wofford graduates, matured in mind and body, each setting out on his own Road into Life, are quite different from the motley crew of boys who trod the Road to Wofford. They have the same names, the same features, some of the same characteristics, but the changes in the intangible—that ordered air about them-mark them as different creatures. They have struggled with languages and sociology, religion and chemistry, history and physics, a little of all the things that keep men better than parrots. They have been given a smattering of the Knowledge of men long dead; they are turned loose to make of it what their ingenuity and resourcefulness enable them.

Of the many graduates, a few have been gifted with positions of authority. They serve themselves. They serve Man.

ALMA MATER

On the city's northern border, Reared against the sky, Proudly stands our Alma Mater, As the years go by.

May it ever be our watchword, "Conquer and Prevail."
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater, Dear old Wofford, Hail!

Cherished by thy sons forever Memories sweet will throng 'Round our hearts, dear Alma Mater, As we sing thy song.

When we from thy halls have parted,
And life's battle's on,
Thy great spirit shall inspire us
Till eternal dawn.

The Main Building is the only one on the campus into which every student has entered.

Through the years it has changed its appearance. At first the Main Building was a plain brick building with steps of wood across the entire porch. Somewhere close to 1880 it was plastered on the front and the stone steps put up as they are now.

More than any others, this building is loved and revered by every alumnus. A mental picture of it is always with them; wherever they are, when their thoughts turn to the Campus, this is the picture they see. For almost a century through its doors have come boys seeking knowledge as a preparation for serviceable living and out through the same doors they have gone to play their part in Life. Here they have caught something of the standard and ideals and traditions of the College and have gone forth under the self-imposed pledge to honor and perpetuate them. In the future, whatever changes are needed in the interior to make it more serviceable will be made, but its simple, classic, majestic exterior will remain as it is today.

..AND ADMINISTRATION

The industrial section of the great Southland is centered in the Piedmont region of the Southeastern states. Aided by proximity to the source of raw materials, the huge textile mills of this Piedmont region have an annual output of millions of dollars and have done much toward raising the standard of living in the South. The old Main Building with its twin towers has long been a source of inspiration for Wofford men. The college officials have wisely ruled that its outward appearance will not be altered. However, under the present expansion program, the structure will be remodeled to meet needs which have existed for many years.

THE WOFFORD OF TOMORROW

The pages of its history gleam with untarnished honor. Out of its halls have gone hundreds of distinguished sons who have held and do now hold positions of leadership in public, business and professional life.

Their college customs have become our worthy traditions.

THE WOFFORD OF TODAY has threaded its way through four years of agonizing warfare and has given to the Armed Services of the nation over 1,800 of its valiant sons. Despite the critical reduction of its student body, it has maintained its complete freedom from debt—a phenomenon of which its friends and Alumni should be justly proud.

THE WOFFORD OF TOMORROW will be what the faith and generosity of its sons and friends determine it shall be. What we who are entrusted with its operation desire it to be is given in the proposed expansion program. Herein is set forth the complete program of development, including the enlarged physical plant essential for Wofford to fulfill the responsibilities of a distinguished college of liberal arts.

WOFFORD calls upon all its friends in Spartanburg, upon all its Alumni in South Carolina, upon all its Methodist friends in South Carolina, and upon all its Alumni throughout the nation to join hands in the building of THE WOFFORD OF TOMORROW.

Since its founding on the Wofford campus in 1938, the Baptist Student Union has done much toward accomplishing the goal of the organization—to link Baptist students to the local church. The group was reorganized last year after a period of dormancy and holds regular meetings and socials.

Every Baptist student is a potential member of the B.S.U.; he becomes an active part of the union when he joins a unit organization in the local church. Wofford delegates attended the state fall convention and spring retreat.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council, composed of the president of the student body, class presidents, and four members elected from the student body at large, is the only student governing body on the campus. In addition to conducting student body meetings, the Council acts on various matters which may arise.

Members are as follows: John Stone, C. E. Jones, Emslie Hendrix, K. L. Grant, Joe Harley, W. S. Ariail, Don Burnette, J. J. Miller, and Harris Parker.

The first shot of the Civil War was fired from Fort Sumter, S. C. Nearby, on the battery at Charleston, are three historic cannon which have played a vital part in the making of history in the South.

THE SENIOR ORDER OF GNOMES

The Senior Order of Gnomes gathers together three of the most prominent and influential members of the graduating class.

It is the sole remaining honorary leadership fraternity on the Wofford campus and serves as an incentive for students over a period of three years.

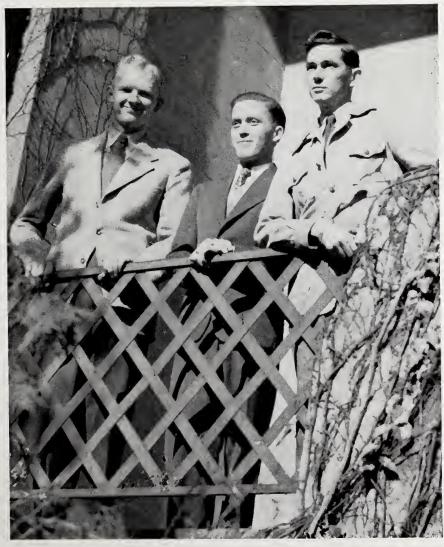

The retiring Senior Order elects new members at the close of each session.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, recognized in some 650 schools, is an annual publication composed of biographical sketches of outstanding students.

THE PUBLICATIONS BOARD

One of the most active and efficient organizations on the campus, The Publications Board maintains financial control over the three student publications, elects editors and business managers, and offers advice and assistance to the staffs.

College yearbooks can be divided roughly into two classes: they are either stilted, separated into distinct sections and very formal; or they are loose, informal, and have no semblance of order.

We have attempted to hit the happy medium. We hope our Bohemian existence has not been in vain!

The Old

The "Fourth Estate" at Wofford is the Old Gold and Black, published once every three weeks in Greer, S. C.

Under the editorship of John Stone, the paper has regained much of its prestige lost in the merger with the Converse College publication and during the first term of 1944-45, when it was non-existent.

THE R. O. T. C.

Two important events highlight the history of Wofford's R.O.T.C. during 1945-46. They are the appointment of Major Davis G. Hughes as Professor of Military Science and Tactics and the reinstatement of advanced units in the R.O.T.C. A total of eleven students are now members of the advanced section. Eight of these are veterans who returned for the second semester.

The value of the R.O.T.C. is shown in the record of reserve officers in the last war. The United States was fortunate in having a vast reserve from which to draw officers.

Military training, as offered by the R.O.T.C., lays a foundation for good citizenship by inculcating habits of precision and orderliness, discipline, self-control, and resourcefulness; and by promoting good physique, correct deportment, patriotism, and respect for constituted authority.

Delta Phi Alpha was born on the Wofford campus in 1929. Dr. James A. Chiles, the founder, was national president for a number of years.

The fraternity is composed of students who are interested in German and who are taking advanced work in that subject.

Officers are: J. R. Griffith, President; Curtis Pearcy, Vice-President; Jack Robinette, Secretary; and H. B. Norton, Treasurer.

VETERANS' CLUB

The Veterans' Club was formed at the beginning of the 1945-46 session with 21 charter members. The "ex-G.I.'s" meet twice monthly, one meeting of which is a social affair.

Dr. Charles E. Cauthen, faculty adviser for veterans, is sponsor of the club. He consults with the men and advises them concerning problems which may arise, especially those connected with the "G.I. Bill of Rights."

PHI BETA KAPPA

Wofford's chapter of the national honorary scholarship fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, was founded on January 14, 1941, when Dean Marjorie Hope Nicholson of Smith College, President of the United Phi Beta Kappa Society, presented the charter to Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder.

Wofford's chapter is one of two in South Carolina, the other being at the University of South Carolina.

THE SOCIETY

The Literary Society has held revered place in the traditions of Wofford from the founding of the College. For more than 85 years, men have left the halls of Preston better able to stand before a group and voice their thoughts more coherently, in better English. To do this, the Society gives students an opportunity to practice oratory before understanding, helpful men interested in the development of each other.

"Speech is a mirror of the soul; as a man speaks, so he is."

WOFFORD'S LYCEUM

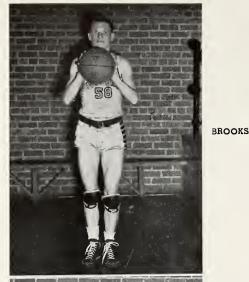

Since its founding by the late Dr. Gamewell in 1898, the Wofford Lyceum has made a profound contribution to the cultural life of Spartanburg by bringing to the city figures of national importance.

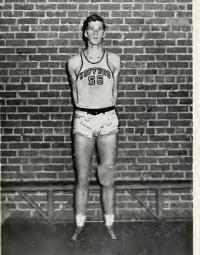

The Lyceum has continued to function during the war years under direction of Prof. W. R. Bourne.

Programs have been open to the general public for the last two years. The Lyceum program is supported by funds from the Student Activities Fee.

COLE

AT WOFFORD

Wofford's cagers of '45-'46 broke even in collegiate competition, putting on a late-season spurt which landed them atop the state's "Little Four."

The Terriers' starting lineup underwent an almost complete change in midseason as an aggregation of more experienced basketeers hit the campus in enrollment for the second semester. Coach Ted Petoskey hurriedly whipped into shape a revamped outfit and War Veterans Charley Seay, Buck Spillers, J. L. Brooks, and company promptly became threats which were not likely to be tossed off by Wofford opponents. After losing to Furman and dropping a couple of close ones to Davidson, the later edition of the Terriers really turned on the heat and racked up five wins in their last six starts.

The season opened against Camp Croft's All-Stars and the service team walked off with a 44-25 triumph. As intercollegiate play began, Wofford's starting line-up, composed of Kennedy and Burwell at forward, Cole at center, and Harry Mahaffey and Hubbard at guards, showed promise as they trounced Erskine twice. After another defeat at the hands of Croft, this one featuring a ding-dong first half battle, the Terriers' fury subsided as they bowed to Furman, to Clemson twice, and to the Citadel. The Petoskeymen bounced back against the College of Charleston, coming out of a thrilling tussle on the long end of a 37-35 count. After leading the team to victory against the Maroons, Whit Kennedy was lost to the squad via his enlistment in the Navy.

Then from the second semester enrollment came the aforementioned additional talent. They lost to the state champs—Furman, they threw a couple of big scares into Davidson in spinetingling engagements, they proceeded to dump P. C., Newberry, P. C. again, lost 40-39 at Newberry, spanked the Citadel 55 to 44, and hung up their uniforms until next year after the final horn ended the last contest of the season. The scoreboard at that time read Wofford 43, College of Charleston 42.

The entire squad should be available for next season; so improved basketball is in store at Wofford.

COACH TED PETOSKEY

WITH WOFFORD

A speedy, steady-fielding team with a fine hitting potential was rapidly taking shape as the Wofford baseball squad set themselves for a diamond campaign of 18 contests.

Watch Cook, Shevchenko, and Stevens in jet-propelled excursions along the base paths—that's the kind of speed that spells trouble when fleet lads like these take off on a sackswiping sprint.

Flaws in the defense will quite naturally bob up, but under the watchful eye of Coach Petoskey, the nine is expected to develop to a point where errors are few and far between. The infielders seem capable of whipping the ball around fast enough to stay with the best of 'em in the double-play department, and therein lies an asset which is liable to break the back of many an opposing rally.

It's said among baseball experts that a team's defense lies through the middle—that is, catcher, pitcher, short-second, and center field. Roaming in the middle pasture will be Chester "Shorty" Stevens, a honey of a center fielder if his early season activities are indicative. The "little man" covers center field like a blanket, often making a long run to haul down the horse-hide and turn an apparent hit into just another out.

BILL ARIAIL SLUGS OUT A HOMER.

ON THE DIAMOND...

As for the punch at the plate, the possibilities are definitely there. Rollins, Haynes, Stevens, and Ariail pack lots of power. Toss in Shevchenko, Culbreth, Carmichael, Cook and McTeer waggin' the willow at the plate and the result is bound to be base hits. Aspirants for state collegiate hitting crown are not to reckon without this O'Neill Casey, who may bat .400.

Where's the pitching? It may develop beyond expectation, but as the season began, much depended on the condition of David Carmichael's left arm. A southpaw, Carmichael showed much promise in practice, but the sore arm developed and he may not be able to hurl for some time. Connie Culbreth and Paul Cooksey will probably be first-line tossers and will have plenty of work cut out for them.

Despite the evils of a one-crop system, cotton will most likely be the money crop in the South for many years to come.

In one county of South Carolina alone, over $16,000,000 worth of textiles was manufactured in 1945.

Thousands of persons are employed between the time cotton seed are dropped into the red clay and cotton cloth rolls from the looms. The entire operation can occur in one county of several Southern states, thereby keeping the money in that particular section.
